

My name is Tshepang Mofokeng and I would like to thank 18twenty8 for providing me a bursary to complete my Fashion Media and Communications degree at the London International School Of Fashion, LISOF (which is now called STADIO: School of Fashion).

This opportunity has offered me the grace to enter into the media and communications space confidentially, knowing that I have the skills and theory to take over in the industry.

I am glad that I came across the organisation and my wish is for other young, brilliant and optimistic women to also get such an opportunity for themselves. Because of 18twenty8 I have become a better woman not only for myself and my family but for my community as well.

This experience has reminded me of the powerful essence of giving and because of it, I will continue to also do good to others and bring a greater light to the South Africa and the world.
